WILTSHIRE Council has won a legal case brought by Old Sarum Airfield Ltd over an alleged breach of contract regarding an unsuccessful planning application on the site.

The applicant sought to claim more than £43m from the council because it alleged that an agreement between the two parties to assist and facilitate the planning application had been breached.

As well as the claim for breach of contract, Old Sarum Airfield Ltd also claimed that the council was negligent and sought financial restitution. All claims were dismissed in an oral judgement by the High Court in May this year without going to trial.
